First Time Seeing an Allergist?

Typical first-time appointments consist of the allergist asking you some questions about your:

- Illness history
- Home & work environment
- Diet
- Living habits

Depending on your situation, the allergist may then perform a physical examination and/or skin test.

What is a Skin Test?

Skin tests are performed by scratching the skin with small dander particles, molds, and foods. If you are allergic to a particular substance, you will experience symptoms within 10-20 minutes. Itchiness, redness, and hives are all common symptoms of an allergy test, but they should subside within a few hours following the test.
